1. This week’s CSEAS lecture: Historian Michael Hawkins on the 1906 Bud Dajo massacre

Michael Hawkins, assistant history professor at Creighton University, will present “Managing a Massacre: Savagery, Civility, and Gender in Moro Province in the Wake of Bud Dajo” at next week’s center lecture from noon to 12:50 p.m. Friday, March 25, in Room 110, Campus Life Building. “My presentation examines the delicate ideological maneuverings that shaped American colonial constructions of savagery, civility and gender in the wake of the Bud Dajo Massacre in the Philippines’ Muslim South in 1906,”

Michael Hawkins
says Hawkins. “It looks particularly at shifting notions of femininity and masculinity as these related to episodes of violence and colonial control . . . [I conclude] that, while the Bud Dajo Massacre was a terrible black mark on the American military’s record in Mindanao and Sulu, colonial officials ultimately used the event to positively affirm existing discourses of power and justification, which helped to sustain and guide military rule in the Muslim South for another seven years.”

Bring your lunch and feed your mind.

2. Spring with Southeast Asia Club: See a movie, get some culture, do some good

The Southeast Asia Club will kick off a month of spring activities Monday, March 21, with its next meeting from 5:30 to 7 p.m., followed by Noodle and Movie Night, in Room 480, DuSable Hall. On Friday, March 25, the club and the center will co-host Malaysian Movie Night with a screening of the 2004 musical Puteri Gunung Ledang from 6 to 8 p.m. in the same location. All are welcome. Jum tengok wayang! On Saturday, March 26, the club heads to Chicago for Taste of the Philippines. Other spring events planned include Southeast Asia Culture Night on April 15, a service project on NIU Cares Day April 16 (sign up on the website and select the Southeast Asia Club team), the annual student conference on April 23 (see item below), and a Hope Haven service project, date to be determined. The next club meetings are April 4 and 18. For details on any of these upcoming events, e-mail niuseaclub@gmail.com.

3. Study abroad in Thailand this summer; deadline to apply April 15

There is still time to apply for associate anthropology professor Andrea Molnar’s four-week summer study abroad program in Thailand for graduate and undergraduate students. The May 30–June 25 program will focus on cultural diversity in Thailand and the relationship between the dominant majority and minorities of the country. “The course introduces students to the culture and diversity of cultural groups in Thailand, the existing power relations between dominant and minority groups, and the practical implications of these relations in everyday Thai life,” Molnar says. The program includes lectures, briefings, field trips, and visits to Thai sites including temples, museums, the Royal Palace, markets, and beaches. On field visits, NIU students will be paired with Thai students. The deadline to apply for the program is April 15; financial aid is available to qualified applicants. For information about the program, financial aid, travel grants, scholarships, and applications, contact the NIU Study Abroad Office, 417 Williston Hall; or e-mail niuabroad@niu.edu. To learn more about studying abroad, Study Abroad 101, a one-stop short workshop, is offered at 3:30 p.m.
Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Study Abroad Office. Study abroad travel grants are available; the deadline to apply for these is \textbf{May 6}.

\textbf{4. Final papers due Wednesday for April 23 student conference}

Students who want to share the results of their Southeast Asia research will have the chance to do so Saturday, \textbf{April 23}, at the Southeast Asia Club’s annual spring student conference. University of Chicago historian Mark Bradley, a specialist in postcolonial Southeast Asia and twentieth-century U.S. international history, will give the keynote address. A cash prize will be awarded to the best undergraduate and graduate papers. Final papers are due Wednesday, \textbf{March 23}; send to Robert Kollas at rkollas@niu.edu. For details, see \textit{conference website}.

\textbf{5. Seeking a few more host families for SEAYLP}

NIU is still looking for two or three local households to act as hosts \textbf{April 10–22} for two male high school students and two adult male leaders participating in the center’s Southeast Asia Youth Leadership Program (SEAYLP). Twenty-two students and four adult leaders from Burma, Indonesia, the Philippines, and Thailand will be involved in the upcoming spring session. Students are placed in pairs and adults may be placed as singles. Host families provide a bed for each participant, breakfast each day and most dinners, meals during one free weekend (\textbf{April 16–17}), and transportation to and from classes at NIU. For details, contact NIU host family coordinator (and past host) Leslie Shive at 815-753-9546 or e-mail lshive@niu.edu.

\textbf{Top 10 reasons to be a host family}

1. You can experience a different country without getting on a plane
2. Your house will be all ready for company
3. Your family will make friendships of a lifetime
4. You’ll be able to pick out Southeast Asia on a map
5. It’s something different to write about on Facebook
6. You could become an expert at making sticky rice
7. Your kids may start answering you in Khmer or Malay or Vietnamese
8. It beats watching “Law and Order” reruns
9. Your family portrait could replace the flying corncob as the international symbol of DeKalb County
10. You can experience a different country without getting on a plane

\textbf{6. On the road in Malaysia: CSEAS assists planning for intensive Malay summer program}

During a trip to Malaysia earlier this month, CSEAS Director Jim Collins spent four days at the Universiti Malaysia Pahang (UMP) in Kuala Lumpur to help with preparations for NIU-UMP’s new summer program in intensive Malay, which will be held at UMP \textbf{June 1} to \textbf{July 12}. Collins met with the language program coordinator and her UMP team, and assisted in interviewing twenty-six applicants for the program’s undergraduate teaching assistant position, later conducting a training workshop for seventeen of them. Collins also toured UMP’s language lab, designated classrooms, faculty housing, and sports facilities. UMP Vice Chancellor Daing Nasir also met with Collins to discuss the summer language program and other plans for collaboration.

7. Cambodian ‘harem’ in the French Protectorate subject of history lecture this week

Center associate and assistant history professor Trude Jacobsen will present “Divergent Perspectives on the Cambodian ‘harem’ in the French Protectorate (1864–1945)” from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. Thursday, March 24, in 338 Graham Hall. A pre-circulated paper is available from the history department’s Amanda Littauer at alittauer@niu.edu, though it is not necessary to review it before the talk.

8. Art historian Richard Cooler leads Lifetime Learning Institute Burma group this week

NIU art historian emeritus and former Center for Burma Studies director Richard Cooler will discuss Burma history, art, and culture at this week’s Wednesday Burma study group offered by NIU’s Lifelong Learning Institute. The study group will meet from 1 to 3 p.m. March 23 in the Sky Room in the Holmes Student Center. Former CSEAS associate Arlene Neher is convening the group to learn about the history, culture, geography, politics, international relations, and everyday life in Burma with current Center for Burma Studies Director and art historian Catherine Raymond, history professor Kenton Clymer, and emeritus faculty Cooler, Clark Neher and George Spencer plus several international students from Burma. The study group will meet 1 to 3 p.m. Wednesdays through May 4. Suggested readings include Donald Stadtner’s Sacred Sites of Burma, George Orwell’s Burmese Days, Emma Larkin’s Finding George Orwell in Burma, and Aung San Suu Kyi’s Letters from Burma. For details, contact the institute at 815-753-5200 or LASEP@niu.edu.

9. International Training Office seeking host families for PYLP program

NIU’s International Training Office (ITO) is looking for area families to act as hosts in May for twenty-two Muslim and non-Muslim youth and four adult leaders from the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao who are coming to NIU in April to participate in the eighth Philippine Youth Leadership Program (PYLP), directed by center associates Susan Russell (anthropology) and Lina Davide-Ong (ITO). The six-week program runs April 16–May 21; the home-stay segment is May 1–14. Contact host family coordinator Leslie Shive at 815-753-9546 or e-mail lshive@niu.edu.
