Design with a purpose: Undergraduate FLAS fellow John Hood explains the math behind the architecture of the 9th-century Borobudur Buddhist temple and World Heritage Site in Central Java, Indonesia with a scale model on the Center’s table at the math- and science-oriented STEMfest event Oct. 19 at the NIU Convocation Center. The Center’s booth was staffed by students and featured games and a Mandala craft-making activity. Thanks to graduate FLAS fellow Julien Ehrenkonig for making it all happen at the CSEAS booth! Help CSEAS grow for next 50

The next half-century for Southeast Asian Studies at NIU will offer exciting opportunities for teaching and learning about this rising region of the world. To keep NIU’s program strong, consider making a donation to CSEAS through the NIU Foundation. To contribute by phone or by mail, go to the How to Make a Gift section of the NIU Foundation website. To make a gift online, go to the Make a Gift Now section. Click on “Make a Gift Now.” Within the pop-up box, designate your gift by selecting “a specific area,” then “university wide programs,” then “Center for Southeast Asian Studies.” Your support is greatly appreciated.
1. Special lecture: Philippine professor to discuss Mindanao peace prospects Oct. 29
Rosalie Arcala Hall, professor at the University of the Philippines Visayas, will be on campus at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 29, to present “The Framework Agreement on Bangsamoro: Prospects for Peace in Southern Philippines” in a special lecture in the Capitol Room South at the Holmes Student Center. The landmark Bangsamoro framework agreement was signed on Oct. 15, 2012, by the Philippine government and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF), a separatist Islamic group that has been operating for decades in Central Mindanao seeking autonomy for the Muslim majority region. Most recently there have been violent setbacks focused in Zamboanga City (see below). In her lecture Hall will address the implications of the framework agreement and the outlines for what is hoped to be an enduring peace process in the southern Philippines.

2. Campus groups organize fund-raiser for conflict-torn Zamboanga City
In the wake of recent violence in Zamboanga City in the southern Philippines, thousands of people have been displaced from their homes. NIU’s Rotaract Club, the Asian American Center and Center associate Rhodalyne Gallo-Crail’s Tagalog language class have organized a fund-raising open house from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 29, at the Asian American Center to help support emergency relief efforts in the city. Organizers are asking for a small donation in exchange for one bowl of rice and a cup of water to learn more about the situation in the southern Philippines.

3. Center associates update: At the podium and in print
• Tharaphi Than (foreign languages and literatures) presented “Juggling between Religion and Modernity: The World of Burmese Women Writers” Oct. 18 at the University of Wisconsin-Madison Center for Southeast Asian Studies’ regular Friday forum.
• Kheang Un (political science) will be presenting at the Nov. 22–23 Great Games in Central and Southeast Asia in the Great Power Politics international conference on Cheju Island in South Korea. The conference is organized by the Northeast Asia Future Forum, an academic collaboration among the Graduate School of International Studies at Chung Ang University, the Center for International and Strategic Studies at Peking University and the US-Korea Institute at the School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University.
• Center Director Judy Ledgerwood (anthropology) traveled to Middlesex Community College in Lowell, Mass. Oct. 17–19 for “Crossing Borders, Bridging Cultures: Remapping Identities in Southeast Asia,” a workshop that is part of a national symposium sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities. Ledgerwood presented “Cambodian Cultures/Khmerican Identities.” In addition to presentations, the workshop included discussions of practical ways to enhance courses and curricula in Asian studies.
• Andrea Molnar (anthropology) reports that one of her former students Poonnatree (Golf) Jiaviriyaboonya (MA anthropology, 2012) has been accepted into the anthropology PhD program at Australian National University. Congratulations to Golf!
• It may not be a typical media mention for Michael Buehler (political science) and NIU, but both made the infamous page six of the New York Post in an Oct. 16 story about the professional debut of a Muslim Malay woman in a recent high-profile mixed martial arts fight at Singapore Indoor Stadium. Ann Osman, a business development manager, is the first Muslim Malay woman to have competed at this level. Her appearance was expected to be draw fire from the conservative Muslim community. “I’m sure there’s going to be some kind of backlash,” Buehler (erroneously quoted in the Post as Mark Buehler) said of the fight. Elsewhere in the media, Buehler was quoted in an Oct. 20 article about troubles with Indonesia’s political clans in the Financial Times.

4. Anthropology student invited to speak at Field Museum event for Philippine collection
A few days ago, anthropology MA student and FLAS fellow Anthonie Tumpag was given a rare private tour of the Chicago Field Museum’s collection of 10,000 largely pre-colonial and Muslim artifacts from the Philippines. Tumpag is one of several guest speakers for the museum’s Oct. 28 kickoff of its 10,000 Kwentos project who were invited for the Oct. 16 tour.

Most of the museum’s Philippine artifacts, which were collected during the early 1900s and the 1899–1902 Philippine-American War, have been in the museum’s vaults in storage for years, Tumpag said. Because the origin and use of the artifacts have not been well-researched, the museum is seeking to involve the Chicago Filipino community in gathering more information (including stories or kwentos) about the objects. Most of the pieces were gathered in funded expeditions between 1907 and 1910; the rest were donated by American soldiers serving in the Philippines during the Philippine-American War. Anthropologist Fay-Cooper Cole, for whom both the collection and NIU’s Cole Hall, is named, and others were the primary scientists involved in amassing the collection.

Tumpag, who came to NIU to study cultural anthropology in 2012 from Middle Tennessee State University and has shown his own collection of Southeast Asian artifacts twice at NIU, has been asked to speak about discovering his own Filipino-American heritage through the experience of collecting artifacts. Touring the collection, Tumpag said, was powerful. “[It was] a surreal moment where each person seemed to have their own personal, tangible connection with their past,” he said. “For me it was an emotional and powerfully uplifting experience that I will always remember and draw strength from.”

The kickoff event takes place from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 28 at the marae house in the Maori gallery. To attend the event, contact Ron Salazar at ron.salazar@cityofchicago.org or Edgar Jimenez at edgar@fan-chicago.org.

5. Midwest Conference on Asian Affairs this weekend
Michigan State University in East Lansing, Mich., will be the site of the 62nd Midwest Conference on Asian Affairs Friday and Saturday this week. Center associate Trude Jacobsen (NGOLD/history) will lead the panel “The Past in Burma’s (Gendered) Present: Historicizing Intersectionality in Myanmar.” Associate Jui-Ching Wang (School of Music) is presenting “Do I Sound Chinese Now? A Musical and Cultural Analysis of Students’ Learning Experience in the Northern Illinois University Chinese Music Ensemble.” Adjunct Alan Potkin will be presenting “Mekong Fisheries Greenwash? Retrieving the Pak Mun Dam Experience from Orwell’s Memory Hole.” Conference registration, which includes Saturday evening banquet and one-year MCAA membership, is $65 for students; $85 for others. For details, see conference website.

6. Information session for NGO study abroad Oct. 28, 29
Two information sessions for next summer’s “NGOs and Globalization: Southeast Asia” study abroad program are scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday, Oct. 28, and Tuesday, Oct. 29, in Zulauf 1015. Associate History Professor Trude Jacobsen (history) will outline the program, which will take participants to study the growth of non-governmental organizations in Cambodia, Thailand, and Vietnam May 28 to June 13.

7. Gearing up for a summer study abroad in Southeast Asia

Examine NGOs in Cambodia, Thailand and Vietnam. Explore cultural diversity in Thailand. Experience Balinese music, dance and culture in Indonesia. Learn Lao language and culture in Laos. Conduct clinical research on hearing loss in Cambodia or environmental research on public health in Indonesia. There are more choices than ever to study abroad in Southeast Asia next summer. NIU faculty will lead five of six study abroad programs to SEA offered through NIU’s Study Abroad Office.

- Trude Jacobsen (History) will take a group May 28–June 13 to Cambodia, Thailand and Vietnam to study the growth of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in those countries. A new program, the course will look at how “development policy is imagined, produced, and received (or resisted) across multiple cultural contexts,” Jacobsen says.

- Jui-Ching Wang (School of Music) will introduce Balinese music, dance, theatre, architecture and crafts July 1–30 in her new program to Bali, Indonesia. “Students will experience these arts by interacting with the local people and gaining knowledge about the inseparable relationship of the arts, religion, and culture on Bali,” Wang says.

- Andrea Molnar (Anthropology) will reprise her 2012 program, “Cultural Diversity in Thailand,” May 16–June 14 in Thailand. Molnar’s program will introduce students to Thai culture and diversity, and examine the relationship between the dominant majority and minorities of the country.

- Tomoyuki Shibata (College of Health & Human Sciences) returns to Indonesia June 1–21 to continue research activities on environmental factors and public health. Past program projects have examined the effect of indoor air quality or mothers’ behaviors on children’s health.
- King Chung (School of Allied Health & Communicative Disorders) is conducting a group June 1–14 to Cambodia for “Heart of Hearing Program in Cambodia,” a program to help students develop their clinical skills by working with hearing-impaired individuals and helping facilitate local programs. Geared to audiology students.

- Study Abroad in Laos (SAIL), a program offered through the Center for Lao Studies in San Francisco and with credit from NIU, will run June 27–July 31. Based in Vientiane, Laos, the program offers students language and cultural lessons as well as exposure to Lao history and culture.

8. Call for papers: International Burma Studies Conference 2014
The 2014 International Burma Studies Conference will be Aug. 1–3 in Singapore by the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) and the National University of Singapore’s Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. The conference theme is “Envisioning Myanmar: Issues, Images, Identities.” Conference organizers are accepting proposals for papers or panels; deadline for submission is Dec. 31. Email to bsc2014@iseas.edu.sg. For details, see the conference website.

9. Save the dates: International Education Week
- Oct. 29: Eboo Patel, author of Acts of Faith: The Story of an American Muslim, the Struggle for the Soul of a Generation, talks about his book in “Many Beliefs, One Community,” at 6:30 p.m., Carl Sandburg Auditorium, Holmes Student Center. Patel is the founder and executive director of the Chicago-based Interfaith Youth Core. His book is this year’s NIU Common Reading Experience. Read more about it here.
- Nov. 11–15: International Education Week sponsored by the Division of International Programs. Plans related to Southeast Asia include a lecture by an Islamic banking expert from Malaysia and an international careers event Nov. 12, and a keynote lecture on colonial Burma by Rutgers University historian Chie Ikeya Nov. 15.

10. Burnish your resumé: Sign up for SEA Studies minor or grad concentration
Adding a minor to an undergraduate degree or a graduate concentration to an advanced degree can pull a resumé up to the top of the pile. To learn about NIU’s Southeast Asian Studies programs, visit the CSEAS website or stop by Pottenger House, 520 College View Court. Undergraduates may make an appointment with Outreach Coordinator Julie Lamb at jlamb@niu.edu; graduate students should contact Assistant Director Eric Jones at eajones@niu.edu.

11. Call for papers: International Conference on Hmong Studies
The Center for Hmong Studies at Concordia University in St. Paul, Minn., is seeking proposals for papers and organized panels for its 5th International Conference on Hmong Studies set for March 21–23. Emerging and established scholars are invited to share their research on Hmong-related subjects. Panels should consist of three to four panelists and one moderator. Deadline for submissions is Nov. 29. For more information, see the conference website. NEW
