Burnish your resumé

Add a Southeast Asian Studies minor to an undergraduate degree or a graduate certificate to an advanced degree and pull your resumé to the top of the pile. To learn more, visit the CSEAS website or stop by CSEAS at 520 College View Court.

Undergraduates may make an appointment with Outreach Coordinator Julien Ehrenkönig at ehrenkonig@niu.edu; graduate students should contact Assistant Director Eric Jones at iloveroti@gmail.com.
1. This week’s lecture: Visualizing hydropower in mainland SEA

NIU adjunct Alan Potkin will present “The Visualization Toolbox in Evaluating Pharaonic Chinese Hydropower Schemes in Yunnan, PRC, and in Mainland Southeast Asia” at noon Friday, Oct. 2, in Room 100, Campus Life Building. Potkin, who received his PhD in environmental planning from the University of California-Berkeley, will show through interactive media how China is relocating hydroelectric power projects to mainland Southeast Asia countries where there is less organized opposition. To order an Indonesian lunch, submit an online request by 6 p.m. Thursday at CSEAS Brown Bag Order. Orders must be cancelled online by 10 a.m. Friday. Cost is $5 for students and $6 for faculty, staff and others. Payments may be made in cash or by check. For lunch details, e-mail csea brownbag@gmail.com.

2. Welcome, LOCSEA! NEW

CSEAS and the Center for Non-Governmental Organization Leadership and Development (NGOLD) welcomes 21 Southeast Asian undergraduate students to NIU Sept. 30 for a new five-week US State Department-funded institute that will focus on human rights, civil rights and civic engagement (http://www.cseas.niu.edu/cseas/currentinitiatives/LOCSEA/index.shtml). The State Department’s Young Southeast Asia Leaders Initiative Academic Fellowship (YSEALI) institute, “Leading and Organizing for Change in Southeast Asia,” will take participants from DeKalb, Chicago and Springfield in Illinois to Atlanta, Selma, and Birmingham in the South to trace the historical and contemporary roots of the civil, labor, women’s and disability rights movements in the US. In workshop sessions, the group will explore community organization strategies and develop their own community projects to execute when they return to their home countries. CSEAS Director Judy Ledgerwood and NGOLD Director Nancy Castle are the academic directors of LOCSEA, with Colleen Gray (MA anthropology, 2014) and Maria “Rai” Nihei (MA history, 2011) serving as administrative directors. Partnering with NGOLD was essential for this new CSEAS initiative, Ledgerwood said. “We have been bringing Southeast Asian students to NIU for the State Department’s Southeast Asia Youth Leadership Program (SEAYLP) since 2009. NGOLD’s expertise in community leadership is a good match for this new project’s focus on civil and human rights,” Ledgerwood said. Castle is enthusiastic about bringing NGOLD’s experience to an international audience of young leaders. “NGOLD’s Community Leadership and Civic Engagement major asks ‘What happens when people band together to make a difference?’ Nothing exemplifies that as eloquently as the rights movements in the US,” Castle said. “The opportunity to work with CSEAS allows both centers to show what they are about and how interrelated topics cross boundaries here at NIU.” LOCSEA participants will be on campus through Oct. 26 and will depart the US Nov. 4 from Washington, DC.

3. Be a LOCSEA host family for a day Oct. 18

The LOCSEA program includes a “Host Day” on Sunday, Oct. 18, for participants to spend a day with an American household. Participants are primarily from Indonesia, Vietnam and the Philippines, with the rest from all other Association for Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) countries except Singapore. Most of the participants are between the ages of 21-24 with a couple who are 19. Families may host one or two students from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (the schedule may be adjusted earlier or later if more convenient). If interested, a one-page registration application form is posted on the LOCSEA website (link above). Please return by Oct. 9 to CSEAS (email to cseas@niu.edu, fax to CSEAS at 815-753-1776, or send by mail to Liz Denius, LOCSEA host family coordinator, CSEAS, 520 College View Court, DeKalb, IL 60115).

4. Learn about 2016 Cambodia field school at this week’s Study Abroad Fair

   CSEAS Director and anthropology professor Judy Ledgerwood will be on hand at this week’s Study Abroad Fair Oct. 1 to talk about her summer 2016 Cambodia field school “Buddhism and Service Learning.” The program is set for May 27–June 23 in Siem Reap, Cambodia, the home of the Angkor Wat temple compound. Students will explore Cambodian Buddhism and cultural reconstruction in the post-Khmer Rouge era, learn ethnographic field methods, and be placed with a Buddhist or non-governmental organization group for the service component of the program. For more information about the program, visit with Ledgerwood at the CSEAS table at the Study Abroad Fair in Duke Ellington Ballroom, contact her by phone at 815-753-1771 or email her at jledgerw@niu.edu.

4. Center associates update NEW

   ✴️ Catherine Raymond (School of Art, Center for Burma Studies) and Alan Potkin (NIU adjunct) have published “Laos’ Plain of Menhirs: Hintang Archaeological Park: A Work in Progress” in the SEAMEO Regional Centre for Archaeology and Fine Arts journal, SPAFA 23.1.

   ✴️ Susan Russell (Anthropology) will present “Youth Leadership and Conflict Resolution in the Southern Philippines” at the Lifelong Learning Institute brownbag, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Oct. 27 in the Holmes Student Center. Bring your lunch or just drop in.

   ✴️ Kenton Clymer (History) with visiting Chinese scholars Wen Ronggang from Bohai University and Pang Hai-hong from Yunnan University at the Center’s fall Sarong Soiree gathering Sept. 27.

5. SEA Club: Bonfire, mixers, culture and things that go bump in the night

Southeast Asia Club events are the places to be this fall. In addition to regular club meetings every second Tuesday of the month, the club has organized a full lineup of activities for fall semester.

   Meet visiting college students from Southeast Asia at the LOCSEA (Leading and Organizing for Change in Southeast Asia) mixer from 6 to 7 p.m. Oct. 7 in Cole Hall lobby. LOCSEA is a new U.S. State Department program managed by CSEAS. The next week bring your marshmallows and a warm jacket for the SEA Club fall mixer and bonfire from 5 to 7 p.m. Oct. 13 at the East Lagoon. Southeast Asia-style ghosts, goblins and things that go bump in the night beckon 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 30 at the club’s Halloween party in Cole Hall lobby. The club winds up the semester with a fun and festive Southeast Asia Culture Night from 6 to 8 p.m. Nov. 13 at Newman
Catholic Student Center. All Southeast Asia Club activities are listed in Huskie Links or posted on Facebook (Southeast Asia Club at NIU). For info about the club, email niuseaclub@gmail.com or contact CSEAS Outreach Coordinator Julien Ehrenkönig at 815-753-1595.

6. Alumni Connect: Thinking global, working global

   What careers lie ahead for someone who’s studied Southeast Asia? Ask a CSEAS alum who’s made a career in the international arena. John Brandon got his master’s degree in political science concentrating on Thai studies in 1985 and is now director of international relations for the Asia Foundation. CSEAS will host a “fireside chat” with him from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Oct. 9 at Pottenger House after he presents “Political Instability and the Role of the Military in Thailand: Historical Context, Current Events and Outlook” at the weekly CSEAS lecture series at noon in Room 100 Campus Life. Join us at our first Alumni Connect session for coffee, cookies and insightful conversation.

7. Caring for Cambodia: Changing lives through education

   Join CSEAS for a special presentation Oct. 14 by Jamie Amelio, founder of Caring for Cambodia, a nonprofit non-governmental organization that works with Cambodian communities to improve local education. The group helps train teachers, purchase classroom supplies, maintain and upgrade facilities, and provide bicycles, uniforms and basic health care to Cambodian youngsters. Amelio will speak about his organization’s work from 6 to 7 p.m. in Room 305 Holmes Student Center. For details, email cseas@niu.edu or call the center at 815-753-1771.

9. All the news that fits: Mandala 2015 posted online

   The summer 2015 issue of the Center’s Mandala annual newsletter is now posted on the Center website. Read all about: CSEAS associate Jui-Ching Wang’s summer study abroad in Bali, POLS PhD students Thomas Rhoden and Aaron Johnson’s experiences as overseas fellows with the Boren and Fulbright programs, new acquisitions in the Donn V. Hart Southeast Asia Collection, and what CSEAS faculty and students have been up to in the past year.

10. Hmong American exhibit to open in November at Anthropology Museum

    The NIU Anthropology Museum will open a major exhibit celebrating 40 years of Hmong American history in November. The exhibit will focus on the history of life in Laos continuing through the 1953–75 Laotian Civil War (known by Hmong veterans as the Secret War) and prominently feature the oral histories and material culture of Hmong Americans. The exhibit will also spotlight the museum’s permanent collection of Hmong textiles. The Laotian Hmong people are an ethnic minority who came from China and settled in the Laotian highlands as farmers. During the Vietnam conflict, many were trained by the US Central Intelligence Agency as guerrilla fighters against the communist Pathet Lao forces. At the end of the war, many Hmong fighters, fearing for their safety, fled the country, with thousands coming to the US as refugees. Many settled in the Midwest. The exhibit will run through March. Details on the opening to be announced.
