Describing Yourself

Reflecting on Your Teaching

Developing Your Teaching Style

Planning Formative Feedback

Recalling Indelible Memories
Reflect on my Teaching
Aim to reflect on both what you believe you are doing well (or have done) as well as those things which you feel could be improved. A cycle of plan, act, review, and adapt can be an effective strategy when reflecting on your teaching.

Things I am doing well in my class as a TA:

Things I could improve upon in my class as a TA:

What challenges do I see ahead for the upcoming semester?

What solutions will I implement to overcome these challenges?

Course Promotion Bulletin Activity
You have been asked to create a promotional bulletin for the fall course you are going to teach. Following the prompts below, “pitch” or “sell” your course and yourself as a teaching assistant.

Selling my course:

Selling myself as a teaching assistant: