Experiencing the Arts in Bali

July 4 – 25, 2015

PROGRAM DATES: The program will officially begin on Saturday, July 4, 2015 in Tabanan, Bali, and will end on Saturday, July 25, 2015. Students will be responsible for making their own air travel arrangements in order to arrive at the Ngurah Rai International Airport in Denpasar by 3:00pm on Saturday, July 3, 2015 A shuttle pickup will be arranged for the students to take them to Tabana.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW: This study abroad program is coordinated by the Northern Illinois University Study Abroad Office (SAO), in cooperation with the NIU College of Visual and Performing Arts, the School of Art, and the School of Music. The cooperating overseas agency is the Traditional Dance and Music Studio, Sanggar Manik Galih, in Tabanan, Bali. The program is in response to Americans’ growing awareness of Southeast Asian cultures in general and of the unique Balinese arts and their functions in traditional and modern-day Balinese society in particular.

Music, dance, and theater along with art and crafts are important parts of Balinese culture. The ceremonial nature of the arts reflects the multiple layers of religious practices and philosophies embedded in a complex sociocultural structure of Balinese society. The inseparable relationships among these arts provide a vivid soundscape and landscape for students to experience the functions of arts in a living environment. The artistic fieldwork experiences will enable students to encounter first-hand Balinese cultural information and will help them to reinforce the theories learned in courses such as anthropology, history, art history, and ethnomusicology. However, previous experience in such courses is not required.

In addition to studying the arts, through living in a traditional village compound, banjar, students will be able to interact with local villagers, participate in (or observe) Odalan, “regularly scheduled festivals to celebrate the anniversary of temples’ dedication” (Dunbar-Hall 2006, 62), and examine the Balinese cultural practices on a daily basis in order to gain a close and intimate familiarity with the Balinese and their involvement with one another in their cultural environment. Since Bali is one of the most popular tourism destinations in the world, students in this program are also encouraged to interact with other tourists to gain insights into the impact of tourism on the development of Balinese culture in the globalized era (Dunbar-Hall, 55).

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES:
Through this program, participants will experience a new culture by interacting with the local people and gaining knowledge about the inseparable relationship of Balinese arts
Experiencing the Arts in Bali - 2015

(music, dance, crafts, and visual arts), religion, and culture. This knowledge will be acquired through the following:

- Classroom lectures on Balinese music and the different dance traditions accompanied by various styles of gamelan
- Classroom lectures on traditional Balinese architecture and crafts, such as batik (a dyeing technique) and wayang kulit (shadow puppetry) theater
- Field experiences including:
  - Gamelan and dance workshop (daily)
  - Leather puppet carving and woodcarving workshop (daily)
  - Architecture & landscapes tour (weekends)
  - Festival attendance (TBA, according to the local calendar)

PROGRAM DIRECTORS:

Jui-Ching Wang is Associate Professor at Northern Illinois University where she teaches music education and world music courses and coordinates world music ensembles such as Chinese music ensemble, Indonesian gamelan ensemble, and Middle Eastern music ensemble. She has published journal articles in English and Chinese and has presented papers at professional music education and interdisciplinary conferences. As a clinician advocating the study of music as culture, Dr. Wang has provided training and demonstrations for in-service teachers and students in the U.S., China, and Taiwan to help them expand their cultural horizon through music.

Shei-Chau Wang (Art)
Shei-Chau Wang is Associate Professor in Art and Design Education in the School of Art. Before joining the NIU faculty, Dr. Wang taught Art, Design, and Art Education at several universities in Taiwan. His research interests include e-learning in art and design, art assessment in digital/virtual learning environments, and interdisciplinary education through the arts. He has published articles in both English and Chinese and presented numerous papers at both national and international conferences. He currently serves on the editorial board of the International Journal of Education through Art (International Society of Education through Art) and 美育 [the Journal of Aesthetic Education] (National Taiwan Arts Education Center).

GUEST INSTRUCTORS:
I Made Lasmawan, Gamelan
Balinese drummer and composer I Made Lasmawan was born in the village of Bangah, in the Baturiti region of the regency of Tabanan, Bali in 1958. Strongly influenced by his family and involved in the arts since childhood, he entered KOKAR (Conservatory for Traditional Performing Arts) in Denpasar, Bali, and graduated in 1977. He continued his studies in 1978 at STSI (Indonesian College of the Arts) in Surakarta (Solo), Central Java, and studied traditional Javanese music, receiving his Traditional Indonesian Music degree in 1983.

Mr. Lasmawan has traveled throughout the world, including Belgium, France, England, Singapore, Japan and Mexico. He is a prolific composer who taught Balinese music at STSI from 1983 until 1990, when he was invited to San Diego State University to teach Javanese and Balinese music. Living in Colorado since 1993 as an Artist-in-Residence with the Gamelan Tunas Mekar, he also teaches Balinese gamelan at Colorado College in Colorado Springs, Naropa University in Boulder, Colorado, the University of Wyoming in Laramie, and the University of Colorado, Boulder. When in Bali, he continues to play a lead role in the development of his home village’s musical orchestras, which include a men’s gamelan angklung and a children’s orchestra.

I Gusti Ngurah Kertayuda, Dance
I Gusti Ngurah Kertayuda is a graduate of the Conservatory for Traditional Performing Arts (KOKAR) in Denpasar, Indonesia. He has taught and performed traditional and modern dance and gamelan since the 1970s, both nationally and internationally for numerous dignitaries and festivals. Since his relocation to the United States in 1989, he served as the artistic and choreography director for the Indonesian Consulate General of Chicago and has just retired from this position in December 2012. He is now the director of Indonesian Dance of Illinois, a non-profit organization in the greater Chicago area promoting Indonesian culture through dance and music.

PROGRAM SITE(S): Banjar Bangah, Baturiti, in Tabanan, Bali, is the primary site where this program will be based.

Tabanan is the capital of the Tabanan regency of Bali. Not well known by visitors due to a lack of infrastructure, the coastal areas in the south have been lightly developed in recent years, and there are now some high profile accommodation options there. Tabanan is more famous for its rolling green landscapes, hills and especially the imposing Mount Batukaru, Bali’s second highest peak at 2,276 meters. The town of Mengwi has a long and rich history associated with its royal family and a splendid temple complex at Taman Ayun. (http://wikitravel.org/en/Tabanan)

Students will stay and study in Banjar Bangah in Tabanan for the three-week program. A small village compound bound by religion and a local brand of communalism, the banjar can also be perceived as a traditional autonomous institution that fulfills the villager's communal and religious needs by combining social activities and ceremonies. Because music is an important part of such ceremonies, traditionally each banjar owns and maintains sets of gamelan. Banjar is the most basic building block of the whole of the Balinese society and is the most important link between the government and the Balinese. Banjars are like tiny screw in the huge engine. If one of the screws comes loose, the whole engine will start to fail. (http://www.indo.com/featured_article/banjar.html)

In addition, the program will take place at the following sites:
- Ubud Culture Center;
- Temples: Taman Ayun Temple, Beratan Temple, Tanh Lot Temple, Besakih Temple;
- Scenic Sites: Beratan Lake, Botanical Garden, Rice Terrace, Monkey Forest, Lovina Beach, and Gitgit Waterfall

The students will also participate in part of the 2015 Bali Arts Festival in Denpasar. The Bali Arts Festival is a full month event consisting of daily performances, handicraft exhibitions, and other related cultural and commercial activities. On display are forgotten or recently revived trance dances from remote mountain areas, food and offering contests, classical palace dances, and "kreasi baru" (new creations) from the dance schools of Denpasar and contemporary choreography and dance companies from other Indonesian islands and abroad. The Bali Arts Festival, the Denpasar cultural event of the year, is a unique opportunity to see local village culture, “live” and at first hand. (http://www.baliartsfestival.com/#about)

PROGRAM AUDIENCE: Space is limited and qualified applicants will be accepted on a first-come-first-served basis. The program is open to all students (both undergraduate and graduate levels) interested in Balinese culture, including non-traditional students, students-at-large, and professionals. This course will be of special interest to students from art (studio art, art education, and art history), anthropology, communication, political science, global studies, cultural studies, music, dance, theater, and history, and to those with a Southeast Asian Studies focus.

INSTRUCTIONAL METHOD: The sessions include daily (5-day/week) lectures on the overview of Balinese culture by program directors (Jui-Ching Wang and Shei-Chau Wang) and daily rehearsals with guest instructor (Made Lasmawan, gamelan; Ngurah Kertayuda, dance; and Ni Ketut Lasmawan, dance), and workshops with local leather puppet and woodcarving artists. Individual and group practice sessions (on music and dance) are also important parts of the program. In addition, evening events including participation in local festivals/ceremonies will be arranged according to the Balinese calendar to be part of your cultural exploration. A one-hour debriefing session will be held daily by the program directors to allow you to reflect on the activities during the day and to ask questions relevant to the cultural experiences you have encountered. After the debriefing session, you will be required to make an entry into a daily journal of what you have learned from these instructional and field experiences and submit it electronically daily to the program directors as part of the assessment process. Sessions are normally held in the banjar, with the exception of attendance at temple festivals/ceremonies in different villages and on architecture and scenery tours around the island.

Program Directors: Jui-Ching Wang, Shei-Chau Wang
College of Visual and Performing Arts

Course Description:
This study abroad program is coordinated by the Northern Illinois University Study Abroad Office (SAO), in cooperation with the NIU College of Visual and Performing Arts, the School of Art, and the School of Music. The cooperating overseas agency is the Traditional Dance and Music Studio, Sanggar Manik Galih, in Tabanan, Bali. The program is in response to Americans’ growing awareness of Southeast Asian cultures in general and of the unique Balinese arts and their functions in traditional and modern-day Balinese society in particular.

Music, dance, and theater along with art and crafts are important parts of Balinese culture. The ceremonial nature of the arts reflects the multiple layers of religious practices and philosophies embedded in a complex sociocultural structure of Balinese society. The inseparable relationships among these arts provide a vivid soundscape and landscape for students to experience the functions of arts in a living environment. The artistic fieldwork experiences will enable students to encounter first-hand Balinese cultural information and will help them to reinforce the theories learned in courses such as anthropology, history, art history, and ethnomusicology. However, previous experience in such courses is not required.

In addition to studying the arts, through living in a traditional village compound, banjar, students will be able to interact with local villagers, participate in (or observe) Odalan, “regularly scheduled festivals to celebrate the anniversary of temples’ dedication” (Dunbar-Hall 2006, 62), and examine the Balinese cultural practices on a daily basis in order to gain a close and intimate familiarity with the Balinese and their involvement with one another in their cultural environment. Since Bali is one of the most popular tourism destinations in the world, students in this program are also encouraged to interact with other tourists to gain insights into the impact of tourism on the development of Balinese culture in the globalized era (Dunbar-Hall, 55).

Course Objectives:
Through this program, participants will experience a new culture by interacting with the local people and gaining knowledge about the inseparable relationship of Balinese arts (music, dance, crafts, and visual arts), religion, and culture. This knowledge will be acquired through the following:

- Classroom lectures on Balinese culture and religious practices, i.e., animism and Hinduism, and their influence on music, dance, theater and epic literature, and the arts throughout history
- Classroom lectures on Balinese music and the different dance traditions accompanied by various styles of gamelan
- Classroom lectures on traditional Balinese architecture and crafts, such as batik (a dyeing technique) and wayang kulit (shadow puppetry) theater
Experiencing the Arts in Bali - 2015

Field experiences including:
- Gamelan and dance workshop (daily)
- Leather puppet carving and woodcarving workshop (daily)
- Architecture & landscapes tour (weekends)
- Festival attendance (TBA, according to the local calendar)

Assignments:
- Electronic submission of daily journal entries on materials learned (5 entries per week, 20% total) DUE 10:00pm daily, Monday to Friday
  - 3-paragraph reflection essay based on daily activities (including interaction with local residents, such as Balinese instructors, neighbors, or vendors/merchants and/or tourists on the street)
- Electronic submission of a weekly summary (3 entries, 30% total) DUE 10:00pm Sundays (July 12, 19, and 25)

To write your reflection essay, employ ethnographic methods, e.g., interview, observation, and/or reflexivity. Your reflection should be grounded in Cultural Anthropological Theories, such as Geertz’s Thick Description. Reading materials about Geertz’s Thick Description will be sent to you via email.
- Completion of a 15-minute (graduate students, 30-minute) soundscape documentary at the end of the program to highlight your cultural exploration (20%) DUE 7:00pm Friday July 31.
  - The primary content of this documentary will be based on the three weekly summaries you have submitted. Shelemye’s Soundscapes Approach will be the theoretical framework for organizing your documentary. Readings about Shelemye’s work will be sent to you via email.

Grading:
Your final grade will be based on your participation in daily lecture, rehearsal, practice, tourist excursion, and debriefing sessions, and the 3 assignments.
- Active participation in daily lecture, rehearsal, workshop, practice, and debriefing sessions, and occasional cultural events (30%)
- Electronic submission of daily journal entries on materials learned (5 entries per week, 20% total)
