JUNE 23 – JULY 26, 2013

Aerial view of Oriental College, Oxford

This will be the 44th annual summer program offered by Northern Illinois University and Oriental College featuring courses on the undergraduate and graduate levels that are designed to take advantage of the unique resources of the British setting, including the Oxford libraries, theaters of London and Stratford-upon-Avon, and selected cultural, historical and scientific field trip sites. Faculty are accommodated close to students and dine in the same halls so that formal class meetings can be supplemented by individual tutorials and informal conversations. Enrollment in all courses is deliberately kept low in order to permit maximum interaction between students and faculty.

PROGRAM DATES

Sunday, June 23 - Friday, July 26, 2013.

ORIENTAL COLLEGE

The program will take place in Oriental College, founded in 1326 and considered to be one of the most beautiful of the 34 colleges that make-up Oxford University. Oxford is less than 60 miles from London and Stratford-upon-Avon, with frequent and inexpensive bus service to both cities. Cambridge, Canterbury, and other places with literary and historical connections are within 100 miles, and there is virtually no place in Britain or, indeed, Europe that cannot be visited on a weekend trip.

Entrance to Porter's Lodge

INSTRUCTION

The courses will be taught by NIU faculty with Dr. L. G. Black, a Fellow of Oriel College, providing lectures for the Shakespeare courses.

PROGRAM AUDIENCE

Although this is an academic program, it has been designed with a variety of audiences in mind. Non-traditional students (i.e., professionals, individuals with an interest in this subject matter, etc.) as well as currently enrolled students are encouraged to participate in this program. All participants will receive academic credit, and students who are not currently enrolled in an academic program at NIU will be enrolled as visiting students (at the undergraduate level) or Students-at-Large (at the graduate level).

Common Room - Oriel College

Oriel College Library

ACADEMIC CREDIT

Each subject is offered on four levels--general undergraduate, undergraduate major, graduate, and advanced graduate--with reading lists and assignments appropriate to each course level. Students should register for the course number appropriate for their situation or needs. All courses carry 3 semester hours of credit, with the exception of BIOS 305 and BIOS 411/511 which carry 4 semester hours of credit. Students may register for one or two courses. Exceptions regarding the number of courses allowed must be reviewed and approved by Professor Holbrook, College Coordinator.

CLASS SCHEDULES

Classes will meet at hours to be announced (typically, two 2-hour sessions a week for undergraduates with additional conferences for graduate students) Mondays through Thursdays, leaving three-day weekends for study or travel.

ACCOMMODATION AND MEALS

Students will reside in modernized single rooms. Breakfast will be served daily and dinner will be served each Sunday through Wednesday in the 17th-century Hall. Students will be responsible for the purchase of all lunches, as well as dinners on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Students will have access to the College Library and other Oxford libraries. The college has a laundry room, and dry cleaning is available nearby.

Oriel College dining hall

FIELD TRIPS

The program cost includes one trip to Stratford-upon-Avon with tickets to a Royal Shakespeare Company performance, and other trips to sites of academic interest, to be announced. Optional trips, at the students' expense, will also be offered, and students will be encouraged to travel on their own.

Dr. Gabriel Holbrook (Biological Sciences, NIU) serves as the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences Coordinator for the Program. He has a primary research interest in plant physiology and has published numerous research articles on photosynthesis by plants, algae, and bacteria.

EXPLORATION OF PLANT SCIENCE

These courses will be taught by Professor Holbrook of NIU. BIOS 101 is an introductory plant biology course suitable for students majoring in subjects other than biological sciences. All courses take advantage of the University of Oxford Botanic Gardens, which are a short distance from Oriel College. BIOS 305 will explore the basic anatomy, morphology and physiology of plants. These will be related to an evolutionary sequence, considering the selective advantage of structures and functions unique to each group of plants in adapting to their habitats. In BIOS 411/511, which can be taken for undergraduate or graduate credit, detailed attention will be given to the physical and chemical aspects of the “inner workings” of terrestrial and aquatic plants. The courses may also feature guest lectures on selected topics by members of the Oxford University Plant Science Department. Related field trips may include visits to the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew, to the marine environments of the southwest coast of England, and to one of the oldest agricultural research institutions in the world, Rothamsted Research located to the north of London.

Dr. L. G. Black (English, D. Phil. Oxford University) is a Fellow of Oriel College. His special research interests are Shakespeare and the English Renaissance. He is the Editor of Notes & Queries (founded 1849). Dr. Black will participate in classroom discussions and tutorials with NIU students attending the Oxford program.

Dr. Lara M. Crowley (English, NIU) is an Assistant Professor in the Department of English, where she offers courses in Renaissance drama, poetry, and prose. She has published in the fields of Renaissance literature and Book History, and she has investigated literary manuscripts and early printed books in libraries and record offices throughout the United Kingdom.

SHAKESPEARE

For students of English literature, Shakespeare’s name will head any list of major authors. And what better place to study this writer—both as the author of texts and of scripts—than in England? Our goal in the summer 2012 Shakespeare classes will be to explore the range of literary, cultural, historical and textual contexts that inform Shakespeare’s plays. We’ll do this by reading, and then seeing, selected plays, taking advantage of the rich theatrical interpretations available in performances in Stratford-on-Avon, London, and Oxford. We’ll focus our attention on the tension between passion and reason, the individual and the community, and the ways in which those tensions defined and helped to refine Shakespeare’s England. The plays will be selected on the basis of what actually is being performed and available to us for viewing; thus students will have the opportunity to experience the plays they are studying. Individual programs of study will be set in consultation with individual students, depending on the course levels selected.

The author of Caribbean Shadows and Victorian Ghosts: Women's Writing and Decolonization (Univ. Press of Virginia, 1999) and critical essays on the work of A.S. Byatt, Wilson Harris, Peter Carey, Pauline Melville, Dionne Brand, and other British and postcolonial writers, she teaches British modernist, postcolonial, and women's literatures. Her latest book, Magic, Science, and Empire in Postcolonial Literature: The Alchemical Literary Imagination, was published by Routledge in 2012.

“TOP GIRLS”: WOMEN WRITERS OF OXBRIDGE

In A Room of One's Own, Virginia Woolf decries the fact that as a woman she is not permitted entrance into the Oxbridge Library unless she is “accompanied by a Fellow of the College,” a male escort. Historically, women’s relationships with Oxbridge have been problematic in that women were not allowed full membership in Oxford and Cambridge Universities until the 1920s, despite the fact that women’s colleges and halls were established in the 1860s in Cambridge (Girton) and in the 1870s in Oxford (Lady Margaret Hall and Somerville). Since the 1970s, women have been admitted to the formerly all-male colleges at both institutions. With this historical background in mind and beginning with Caryl Churchill’s Top Girls and its interrogation of what it means to be a woman who succeeds in a male world, this course will examine dramas, short stories, and novels produced by Oxbridge’s “Top Girls,” including A.S. Byatt, Monica Ali, Zadie Smith, Emma Donoghue, and Dorothy Sayers. We will take field trips to the former Oxford women’s colleges and visit Haworth Parsonage, the home of the Brontë sisters.

Dr. Danny Unger (Political Science, NIU) teaches courses in the sub-fields of comparative politics and international relations. His research has focused on issues of comparative and international political economy with a geographical focus on East Asia (Southeast Asia and Japan). He expects to be publishing a book on democratic development in Thailand in 2013 with Lynne Rienner Publishers.

THINKING COMPARATIVELY ABOUT POLITICAL DEVELOPMENT: A BRITISH PERSPECTIVE

Most of the world’s first modern democratic states emerged in Europe and were products of highly idiosyncratic historical experiences. Certainly this was true in the case of the United Kingdom. This course will employ social science readings to explore some of the general and unusual features of the British processes of political development. It will then draw on excerpts from a variety of British novels to look in greater depth at particular themes of importance to an understanding of British politics and comparative politics more generally. Among the key themes will be social class and politics, the Second World War, and imperialism and colonialism. We will draw on the resources of Oxford and London—Houses of Parliament (The Palace of Westminster), 10 Downing Street, The Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the War Rooms, the Law Courts--to give students a sense for the texture of the institutions and politics of the UK.
