PROGRAM DIRECTOR: King Chung is a professor of Allied Health and Communication Disorders in the NIU College of Health and Human Sciences. Professor King Chung has professional connections with faculty members at University of Sao Paulo, Bauru and University of Sao Paulo, Sao Paulo. During the program NIU students will work together with audiology students and faculty from the University of Sao Paulo, Bauru to provide audiological services to underserved populations such as individuals with special needs, students enrolled in schools in very poor areas of Bauru. NIU students will also visit professional organizations in Bauru and observe surgeries performed by Brazilian surgeon(s). In addition, students will visit local landmarks to gain a better understanding of the Brazilian culture.
PROGRAM OVERVIEW/OBJECTIVES: The program has three major components:

1. Academic exchanges: visiting local hearing service facilities and universities;
2. Research studies: collecting data on the prevalence of hearing loss among various Brazilian populations
3. Humanitarian services: joining force with local audiologists and students to provide hearing services to underprivileged children and adults; and
4. Cultural immersion: visiting local landmarks and attend cultural activities

The overall goals are to develop professional network overseas, to sharpen students’ clinical skills, to prepare them for future challenges, and to widen their world view.

In addition, if they choose, students will be given opportunities to participate in writing a research paper to a professional peer-reviewed journal. The goal is to disseminate the clinical findings of the program so that the professional organizations and local government will be more aware of the hearing status/problems of underserved populations and individuals with special needs. The long term goal is to facilitate the provision of more frequent and higher quality hearing services to individuals with disability around the world.

PROGRAM SITE(S): Participants will visit the University of Sao Paulo, Bauru and work side-by-side with audiology students and faculty from the University of Sao Paulo to conduct research and to provide audiological services to students enrolled in activity centers for children with special needs and other settings with underserved populations in Brazil.

Through the exchange activities, participants will learn about the educational philosophy and practices in Brazil. Participants from NIU and Bauru will have opportunities to work together to provide hearing services to children with disabilities. These will be precious learning moments for all participants because these populations are not commonly seen in normal clinical practice. As NIU students will not have a good command of the language, this will challenge them to think creatively and to collaborate with local students and audiologists to accomplish the tasks. Through these opportunities, students can widen their scope of clinical practices and build connections with professionals from different parts of the world.

Further, Brazil is the fifth largest country in the world and the largest in South America. Cultural activities are arranged to intermingle with Brazilian students and faculty at University of Sao Paulo, Bauru. Examples of cultural activities include a tour of an old coffee plantation, a visit to the famous Municipal Mecardo and a beach in the Brazilian coast near Sao Paulo.

HIGHLIGHTS:
1. Collaborate with students and faculty in University of Sao Paulo to provide audiological services to underserved populations in a variety of settings
2. Observe a cochlear implant and a cranial facial surgery
3. Visit the University of Sao Paulo Speech and Hearing Program
4. Visit an old coffee plantation and get to know the history of Brazil
5. Intermingle with student and faculty at a social event in the river bank
6. Tour a hearing aid manufacturing plant
7. Visit the famous Municipal Mecardo at Sao Paulo
8. Visit a beach in the Brazilian coast

PROGRAM AUDIENCE: Space is limited and qualified applicants will be accepted on a first-come-first-serve basis. This program is open to undergraduate and graduate students with an interest in Audiology and NIU graduates with a master or doctor of audiology degree

INSTRUCTION METHOD: Instructional methods include:
1. Cultural preparation (before the trip)
2. Formal calibration instructions to test equipment before each hearing screening event
3. Supervision during hearing screening events
4. Meetings to discuss what was learned

Students will write a paragraph reflecting on their experience and what they learned during the program. Students will also create an online journal for the trip documenting daily activities during the program.

PROGRAM ACADEMIC CREDIT: For satisfactory participation in the program, participants will receive 3 semester hours of undergraduate or graduate credit in one of the following NIU courses.

HONORS CREDIT: Qualified students may also elect to receive Honors credit for their course with the approval of Professor Jones. For more information please contact the University Honors Office.

think creatively and to collaborate with local students and audiologists to accomplish the tasks. Through these opportunities, students can widen their scope of clinical practices and build connections with professionals from different parts of the world.

Prior to returning to the US, students will travel to the city of Sao Paulo to visit the ENT department of University of Sao Paulo, tour a hearing aid manufacturing plant, and observe an otologic surgery.

In addition, if they choose, students will be given opportunities to participate in writing a research paper to a professional peer-reviewed journal. The goal is to disseminate the clinical findings of the trip so that the professional organizations and local government will be more aware of the hearing status/problems of students with disability. The long term goal is to facilitate the provision of more frequent and higher quality hearing services to people with disability around the world.

Course Policies:

Academic Integrity
For the complete reference, please see the undergraduate/graduate catalogues.

“A faculty member has original jurisdiction over instances of academic misconduct that occur in a course which the faculty member is teaching. The student shall be given the opportunity to resolve the matter in meetings with the faculty member and the department chair. If the facts of the incident are not disputed by the student, the faculty member may elect to resolve the matter at the level by levying a sanction of no greater than an “F” for that course. The faculty member shall notify the student in writing whenever such action is taken, and the University Judicial Office shall receive a copy of the Academic Misconduct Incident Report indicating final disposition of the case which will be placed in the student’s judicial file. In all matters where the charge of academic misconduct is disputed by the student or if the faculty member believes a sanction greater than “F” in the course is appropriate (such as repeat offenders or flagrant violations), the faculty member shall refer the matter to the University Judicial Office making use of the Academic Misconduct Incident Report. Sanctions greater than “F” in the course can be levied only through the University Judicial System.”

For the purpose of this course academic misconduct examples may include but are not limited to: referring to hidden notes, talking during an exam, observing another student’s paper or sharing extra credit projects. Any incident such as these will result in a zero for that exam, quiz, or project and be addressed immediately with the student. A description will be referred to the college administration for further action.

Plagiarism
“Good academic work must be based on honesty. The attempt of any student to present as his or her own work that which he or she has not produced is regarded by the faculty and administration as a serious offense.” Source: Undergraduate Catalogue pg 47.
The essence of plagiarism is theft and misrepresentation. One who plagiarizes is attempting to get credit, in the form of a grade, for someone else’s work. Thus, guilt or innocence in plagiarism cases is not a matter of how much material was stolen. Any material which is taken from another writer and presented as if it were the student’s own original work comes under prohibition. For more information on plagiarism, please refer to the NIU Department of English website http://www.engl.niu.edu/fycomp/plag.html.

Specific examples of plagiarism include:

1. A paper or assignment actually written in whole or part by another person.
2. A paper or assignment copied word-for-word or with only minor changes from a book, magazine, or other source.
3. A paper copied in part from one or more sources, without proper identification and acknowledgement of the sources.
4. A paper which is merely a paraphrase of one or more sources, using ideas and/or logic without credit, even though the actual words may be changed.
5. A paper which quotes, summarizes, paraphrases, or cuts and pastes words, phrases, or images from an internet source without identification and the address of the web site.
6. Use of a direct quote of more than 4 words written by another individual(s) without the use of quotation marks and referencing which includes author’s name and date of publication in parenthesis.

Students who plagiarize will be penalized to the full extent allowable by the student judicial code. Generally this will mean expulsion from the course and an earned grade of “F” for the course.

Accommodations
NIU abides by Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 which mandates reasonable accommodations be provided for qualified students with documented disabilities. If you have a disability and may require some type of instructional and/or examination accommodation, please contact me within the first two weeks of class. If you have not already done so, you will need to register with the Center for Access-Ability Resources (CAAR), the designated office on campus to provide services and administer exams with accommodations for students with disabilities. The CAAR office is located on the 4th floor of the University Health services building (815-753-1303). Further, if a scheduled exam is in conflict with a mandated religious observance, please notify me.

Due Dates, Tragic Events, Illness, and Exams
In the case of a tragic event or an illness documented by a physician, a student may take a make-up exam; however, the student must present written documentation of the illness from a physician. If a student cannot complete the assignments due to illness, the student will receive an incomplete for the course until all requirements are completed. The above rules about tragic events or illness would also apply to family members but not friends of the student.
