1. CSEAS associate, graduate student receive International Recognition awards

CSEAS Associate Kheang Un, Associate Professor of Political Science specializing in Cambodia, received the 2019 award for Outstanding Faculty Contribution to International Education from NIU’s Division of International Affairs at the Nov. 19 International Recognition Reception. “Dr. Un is a passionate advocate for international students and internationalization,” said Associate Vice President for International Affairs Bradley Bond in presenting the award. “He has created new courses with international content, and he infuses his courses with international content, not only about Southeast Asia. He has created the Cambodian-American Scholarship Fund within the NIU Foundation and I can testify from personal knowledge that he helps Cambodian students get enrolled at NIU, and he helps them while they are enrolled at NIU.” Quoting Political Science Chair Scot Schraufnagel, who nominated Un for the award, Bond said, “Undoubtedly Dr. Un’s greatest contribution to NIU has come in the form of promoting multicultural understanding. His experience growing up in Cambodia under the brutal rule of the Pol Pot regime provides him with a level of empathy and caring that is not easy to define or replicate.” Un is the ninth CSEAS associate to receive the award.

Music graduate student and Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellow Matthew Werstler received the award for Outstanding Student Contribution to International Education. Nominated by CSEAS Assistant Director and Associate Music Professor Jui-Ching Wang, Werstler has continued his research on singing in cross-cultural contexts since coming to NIU in 2018. A student of Thai, Chinese, Korean and Zhuang languages, he has delivered papers at seven academic conferences in the past two years, including the Council on Thai Studies, the International Council on Traditional Music, and most recently earlier this month at the Society of Ethnomusicology, where he presented “Imagin(ed/ing): Singing Communities in Southwest China.” A frequent performer in a variety of ensembles, clubs, and festivals: Samba, World Music Festival, Chinese Music Concert, and Gamelan, Werstler has been a regular volunteer on campus. “He has played leadership roles in the Southeast Asian Student Club and volunteers with the Center, as well as the Taiwanese Student Association; he serves on the Graduate Council,” Bond said. “I think Dr. Wang’s description of Matthew as ‘a warm-hearted American host for countless international students and guests at NIU’ captures the essence of his enthusiasm for fomenting cross-cultural understanding, empathy, and peace.”

The Department of Kinesiology and Physical Education received the Outstanding Department award. The Division of International Affairs is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.
2. Outtakes from International Ed Week: The week in photos

‘Exploring Southeast Asia:’ Exhibit in Donn V. Hart Southeast Asia Collection at Founders Library, left, focuses on the art, culture, languages, fashion and food of Southeast Asia and opportunities for studying abroad through NIU. Through mid-January.

About 175 people attended the event.
3. Deadlines, deadlines: Thai Studies, Student Engagement, Gilman NEW

- NIU Thai Studies: Faculty research, graduate and undergraduate students may apply for funding from the Thai Studies Research and Travel Committee in three categories: Faculty Research, Graduate Student Research and the Award for the Advancement of Thai Language Studies. Students presenting a paper, chairing a panel or organizing a panel may also apply for supplementary funding to cover travel, accommodations or conference registration fees. You must be in good academic standing to apply and your research must relate to Thailand, Thai culture and/or Thai/Tai people. Applications must include a project description, budget, how funds will advance Thai Studies, and a letter of recommendation from a faculty advisor. This funding is provided by an endowment by the Royal Thai Embassy through the NIU Foundation. Deadline to apply: Dec. 1. For details, contact CSEAS associate Kanjana Thepboriruk at kanjana@niu.edu.

- Undergraduate Student Engagement Travel Grants: Funding available for full-time students to attend professional conferences, NIU study abroad programs, Huskie Alternative Break trips and other student engagement projects. Applications reviewed the 15th of every month. Deadline for study abroad funds: Dec. 8. For details, contact engage@niu.edu.

- Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarships: U.S. Department of State program offers international study funding for undergraduate students. Applications open mid-January for May 1, 2020 to April 31, 2021 programs (includes summer 2020). Students who are dependents of active military service members may also apply for Gilman-McCain Scholarships to cover studying or interning abroad. Deadline to apply: March 3.

4. Thai Music Ensemble added to spring SEA classes NEW

A Thai Music Ensemble class for undergraduates and graduate students, MUSE321-0002/621-0002, taught by NIU music alumnus Chamni Sriprraram, has been added to spring classes. Also new for undergraduate and graduate students is ANTH 491/591, Urban Life in Asian Cities, taught by Anthropology instructor Matthew Trew. Graduate students are invited to sign up for SEAS 625, Great Readings in Southeast Asian Studies, which also will be taught by Trew, time and days to be determined. In addition, Eric Jones (History) will be offering SEAS 590 (see online list below), which will study the Vietnam conflicts as historical events and through the lens of film. The Center’s foundational undergraduate class, SEAS 225, Southeast Asia: Crossroads of the World (instructor of record Jui-Ching Wang), is offered from 12:30 to 1:45 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays in DuSable 148.

Online offerings this spring include:

- HIST 346, Women in Asian History (Trude Jacobsen)
- HIST 390, Film and History (Eric Jones)
- POLS 384, Contemporary Foreign Policy (Xu Ke, associate professor, Xiamen University School of International Relations)
- SEAS 590, Advanced Topics in Interdisciplinary Studies (Eric Jones)

Students also will have an internship opportunity through the Political Science department in POLS 490, Internship in Southeast Asian Youth Leadership Programs (April Clark). The course allows students to apply what they have learned in the classroom while earning academic credit. Students will intern with one of two U.S. Department of State youth leadership programs run by CSEAS at NIU in spring: the Southeast Asia Youth Leadership Program (SEAYLP) and the Philippine Youth Leadership Program (PYLP).

In addition to our continuing SEA language classes in Burmese, Indonesian, Khmer, Tagalog and Thai, other spring SEA courses include:
• ARTH 701, Women in a Thousand Years of Buddhist Art in Southeast Asia (Catherine Raymond)
• POLS 285, Introduction to International Relations (Aarjen Glas)
• POLS 378, Political Islam (Kikue Hamayotsu)
• POLS 668, The Political Economy of Developing Areas (Kheang Un)
• POLS 682, Seminar in International Law and Organization (Aarjen Glas)
• MUHL 431/531, Music of Southeast Asia (Chamni Sripraram, instructor)
• MUSE 370/670, Gamelan I (Alex Yoffe, instructor).

5. SEA study abroad: Cambodia, Thailand, Vietnam
NIU and CSEAS are offering three opportunities to study abroad for credit next summer in Thailand, Vietnam and Cambodia. Learn more about studying abroad at a Study Abroad 101 workshop, held at 3:30 p.m. once a week in the NIU Study Abroad office, 417 Williston. Also, check out funding for studying abroad with a Student Engagement Fund travel grant (deadline to apply: Dec. 8). Contact engage@niu.edu. For details on these programs, email program directors, niuabroad@niu.edu, or CSEAS at cseas@niu.edu.

• Thailand: Humanitarian Aid, Sustainable Development and Refugee Studies Global Internship, June 1–July 26, is an interdisciplinary program that begins with one month of campus study in June, followed by a three-week internship experience in Bangkok and Chiang Mai July 5–26. The program is designed to allow you to broaden your field of study by exploring such topics as sustainability, social entrepreneurship, community development, diversity leadership, migration, curriculum design, public health and international/global relations among others. Courses offered are at both undergraduate and graduate levels: SEAS 490/590 and INTL 301/501; six hours credit. Deadline to apply: Feb. 1. For more information, contact program director Karla Findley at kfindley1@niu.edu.

• Vietnam: War and Peace in Vietnam, June 15–July 7, is a month-long program that includes six days of on-campus study before and after a 12-day study tour to Vietnam. Led by Associate History Professor Stanley Arnold, the program focuses on the American experience in Vietnam and examines the impact of the war on Vietnam, the region and the world. You will visit Hanoi, Hue, Ho Chi Minh City, Khe Sanh, My Lai and other historical sites, and interact with local communities. Three undergraduate and three graduate courses are offered: HIST 396, HIST 469, HIST 493, HIST 569, HIST 600 and HIST 736; six hours credit. Deadline to apply: Feb. 1. For details, contact Arnold at sarnold@niu.edu.
Cambodia: Cambodian Culture and Civilization, June 8–26, is an immersive three-week program offering a global and cultural perspective on rural and urban cultures in Cambodia. You will spend two weeks in Siem Reap and one week in the capital city of Phnom Penh, including the Angkor Wat temple complex in Siem Reap, Buddhist temples, and Cambodian Genocide historical sites. You will attend lectures on politics, sociology, language, the environment, archaeology and culture and dance at the Center for Khmer Studies in Siem Reap. The program also includes service learning, meaningful community engagement and immersion in Khmer culture. Undergraduate and graduate courses offered include SEAS 225, SEAS 590, and INTL 201 and 501; six hours credit. Deadline to apply: March 1. On-site directors are sociologist Kathleen Westman and Sauk Valley Community College political science professor Paul Edleman. For more information, contact Westman at kwestman911@gmail.com.
